

Centre Support

“Babies are interested in stories long before they can speak. And when the person speaks to them they hear the sense of the narrator in the way it is spoken, the changes of rhythm, the changes of loudness and excitement in the voice and so on. They make a story; the baby doesn’t have to understand the words.”

Colwyn Trevarthen, Emeritus Professor of Child Psychology and Psychobiology in the University of Edinburgh