5.1.1 Positive Educator to Child Interactions

Educational Leader

Responsive and meaningful interactions build trusting relationships which engage and support each child to feel secure, confident and included.

A service broke down the sections of the elements, then added a question to it to identify practice.

- How do you as an educator build trusting relationships?
- How do you as an educator have meaningful interactions?
- Child to feel secure What does that look like?
- Child to feel confident What does that look like?
- Child to feel included What does that look like?

Then the educators looked at the MTOP, followed by the NQS to see what sections could help better understand the element's requirement.

When children feel safe, secure and supported, they develop confidence to explore and learn (Early Years Learning Framework, p. 20; Framework for School Age Care, p. 19).

Secure, respectful and reciprocal relationships are key to establishing a positive and trusting community in school age care settings, and enable children to develop their independence, leadership and social skills, and a strong sense of identity.

Are you sure your educators understand what is meant by 'positive interactions' and all the ways they can implement this? Look at the list and start identifying when you see your educators practicing this. Don't forget to tell them what a great job they are doing when you see it by explicitly telling them.

"Lucy, you're doing a great job by speaking to children at their eye level"

Practice list

- Speaking to children at their eye level
- Having sustained conversations with children during meal/snack times
- Joining in play when invited
- Immediately responding when children are upset
- Asking open-ended questions to encourage children to share ideas, problem solve etc
