

To reduce the risk of spreading infections we should:

make a new batch of play dough each day or make a new batch each week and take only what is needed each day.

store the remaining play dough in an airtight container away from children.

ensure children and educators wash their hands before and after using play dough.